MANY PAY JUDGE SWOPE HONOR AT LAST RITES HERE

Persons From Every Walk Of Life At County Jurist's Obsequies.

BAR BODY PAYS HIGH TRIBUTE

Persons in every walk of life and from every section of Adams county paid tribute to Judge Samuel McCurdy Swope at funeral services held at the Swope home, Baltimore street, at 11 o'clock this morning. Judge Swope died Thursday morning.

The sermon was preached by the Rev. Edward H. Jones, of State College, formerly pastor of the Gettysburg Presbyterian church. In his remarks, the minister lauded the Christian virtues, kindly character and unstinted philanthropies of the deceased.

Prayer was offered by Dr. Milton H. Valentine, of Gettysburg college, of which Judge Swope was a director for many years.

Interment private. Interment was private in Evergreen cemetery.

Members of the Adams county bench and bar attended the services in a body. Before going to the Swope home, the Adams county bar association held a meeting at the court house, with J. L. Williams, president, presiding.

Resolutions of respect, presented by a committee comprising S. S. Neely, John D. Keith and Raymond P. Topper, were adopted and Judge Donald P. McPherson, who succeeded Judge Swope on the bench in 1916, delivered a eulogy.

In his address, Judge McPherson declared that Judge Swope "will be missed by more people of all walks of life than any other man of my acquaintance by reason of his engaging personality, sociability, kindness and friendliness."

Ability As Orator
Judge McPherson traced Judge Swope's career from his birth, pointing specifically to his ability as an orator and public speaker. "His qualifications and popularity achieved for Judge Swope his success as a practitioner, district attorney and judge," the speaker said.

"He was industrious in his practice, strong before a jury, being endowed with a deep emotional nature which he was able to impart to others, and his record on the bench was excellent. Of the cases appealed from his decisions, between 75 and 80 per cent were affirmed by the higher courts."

"Judge Swope was for many years the political leader of Adams county, and one of his outstanding political speeches was given before a convention in Harrisburg urging the nomination of Judge Sadler, of Carroll county."

Police Dog Menace To Public Safety When Running Free

"Reports and information received from dog law enforcement agents show that the so-called 'police dog' when allowed to run at large is a serious menace to property and citizens of the commonwealth," officials of the bureau of animal husbandry of the department of agriculture said in a statement issued today.

"Reports of people being bitten by dogs show that this type of dog is responsible for a relatively large number of instances and such cases seem to be increasing."

"Investigation by bureau agents, of damages caused to livestock and poultry by dogs indicate that the uncontrolled 'police dog' is one of the worst offenders. The damages caused to livestock and poultry by this type of dog apparently are increasing."

WILL ROGERS says:

To the Editor of The Times:
Beverly Hills, Calif., June 27.—Mr. Mellon has got a tough job. He has to go to Paris and explain to the French that it's better if Germany didn't pay anything for a year. Now when you start in telling France something about Germany, that's kinder like explaining politics to Calvin Coolidge. It can't be done. France will say, "That's fine, Mr. Mellon, from a Pittsburgh angle, but we happen to live right across the river from em and we know what's going to happen to us soon as they are able again. What are you trying to do—shorten our lives one year?"

FIELD BATTERY TO LAY WREATH ON MONUMENT

Public Invited To Attend Services Sunday At 2:30 On Field.

REGIMENT IN PHILIPPINES

The headquarters battery, 1st battalion of the 6th field artillery, of Fort Hoyle, Maryland, under the command of Captain Leo T. McMahon, will honor the memory of regular army soldiers who participated in the three days' battle at Gettysburg, at appropriate exercises on the battlefield at 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

The headquarters battery, in camp on the Wheatfield here, will hold its exercises in front of the United States regulars' monument, north of the Pennsylvania monument on Hancock avenue.

The unit in camp here for several days will proceed to the regulars' monument Sunday afternoon. At 2:30 o'clock the 20-piece band will render a selection appropriate to the occasion. Sergeant Phillips will lay a wreath at the base of the monument while a bugler sounds taps, the soldiers' requiem. The rest of the unit will be at attention. Following this the band will render several selections. There will be no addresses.

Warrant Officer Bellman is leader of the band.

Captain McMahon this morning issued an invitation to the public to attend the exercises.

"We will be delighted to have the people of Gettysburg and surrounding communities attend our exercises. It would be particularly appropriate to have the local citizens join with us in commemorating the heroic deeds of the regular army troops who participated in the battles here."

It is significant that these exercises take place at this time. Battery A and D, of which regiment the local headquarters battery is a part, participated in the Spanish-American war and later fought in the Philippines. A veteran attending the convention here this week was a member of Battery D that fought in Cuba.

BAD WEATHER LIMITS RUN

Local Fire Company Gives Demonstration Of New Foamite Engine.

Three Adams county fire companies participated in a run from their respective communities to Gettysburg, Friday evening, after which the Gettysburg fire company gave a demonstration of the new combination chemical and pumper truck on a vacant lot on South Washington street.

Inclement weather interfered with the run, but fire companies from Cashtown, New Oxford and Abbottstown participated in the run. Cashtown made the run from that community to Gettysburg in 11 minutes, while the other two companies each came here in 19 minutes.

Gettysburg's new piece of motorized fire-fighting equipment responded nicely to every test imposed upon it. A gasoline and oil fire was quickly extinguished with foamite suds and another blaze saturated with gasoline was soon put out with soda and acid chemicals. The pumper on the truck, which throws 150 gallons of water a minute, was then tested.

The run and test were staged in connection with the local firemen's annual food sale and bazaar which began Wednesday evening and closes tonight. So far the bazaar has been successful, members of the company said.

Local Photographer Is Personal Friend Of Trans-Atlantic Flier

Otto Hillig (right), Holger Hoiris, and their plane.

John A. Mumper, Baltimore Street, Watches Accounts Of Success Of Otto Hillig With Great Interest Because Of His School Day Acquaintanceship.

The successful trans-Atlantic flight from New York to Copenhagen completed on Friday by Otto Hillig and Holger Hoiris was watched with more than ordinary interest by John A. Mumper, Baltimore street photographer, a personal friend of Hillig.

Hillig and Mumper were fellow students at the Effingham school of photography, Effingham, Illinois, 30 years ago, and the latter today was showing friends a picture of a group of students which includes the now middle-aged photographer of the trans-oceanic flight and the Gettysburg photographer.

According to Mr. Mumper, Hillig had just come to this country from Germany a short time before coming to Effingham school, one of the few schools of photography in the United States at that time. "Hillig was a sport, and although he spoke English with an effort, he was very funny," Mr. Mumper said.

The picture, showing Hillig, is now prized very highly by Mr. Mumper. The group shown boarded at that time hotel in Effingham.

Hillig still is a photographer, and went along on the aerial trip solely for the adventure attached to such an expedition. He expected to take

Warns Against Use Of Fire On Fourth

"Don't celebrate with fire and fireworks" is the caution urged by Fire Marshal William Morgan of the Pennsylvania state police in reference to the observance of Independence Day. He pointed out that each year hundreds of persons, mostly children, are killed or seriously injured, and valuable property destroyed by the use of fire works and other pyrotechnic displays prior to and on July 4th.

Many communities prohibit the sale of dangerous fire works and with local co-operation in the strict enforcement of such protective ordinances and proper interest taken by parents, many fatalities and much property loss can be avoided during that period, Morgan said.

The trio was arrested by railroad officers who found them hiding beneath scrap newspaper in a box car which they boarded at Freeland, Maryland, Thursday, they said.

Stock Market Keeps On Going Up Today

New York, June 27 (AP)—Share prices pushed upward again into today's stock market, making a seven-day return magnitude rarely experienced in recent history. Stocks raised one to four points more in the two hour week-end session despite a fair volume of week-end profit taking and a momentary downturn at the opening. Closing prices were close to the top although there was a little recess in the final dealings.

The vigorous upswing of prices starting a week ago today, has not been paralleled since the rebound after the completion of the selling panic in October and November of 1929.

Wall street was relieved that the Laval ministry in France was upheld by a large majority in the chamber of deputies after a stormy all night session. There has been no impairment of confidence in Wall street in the eventual Franco-American accord.

Just preceding the ceremony, Mrs. Elton Boyer, of Gettysburg, sang "O Promise Me" following which the bride party entered to the strains of the wedding march played by Ernest Shultz, of Cashtown.

White Lace Gown

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was gowned in white lace, made on long graceful lines. She wore lace mitts and carried a bouquet of white roses and gypsophila.

Miss Lois Arnold, of Elgin, Illinois, a sister of the groom, attended as maid of honor. She wore a model of blue net and a picture hat of the same shade of blue with pink velvet trimming and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

HOSPITAL HERE WILL GET AID

Local Institution Is Allotted $7,700 In State Aid Bill.

The Annie Warner hospital, here, was awarded $7,700 of state aid money in the general appropriation bill for hospitals signed today by Governor Pinchot in Harrisburg on the final day for signing or vetoing measures.

The hospital was originally slated for a somewhat larger sum in the appropriation measure, but as appropriations were pared to meet the state budget, the local hospital lost along with all other institutions in the state in the final amount awarded. Representative Sheely originally submitted a bill asking for $12,000 for the institution.

Harrisburg, June 27 (AP)—Governor Pinchot today vetoed appropriations measures totalling $38,783,500, of which $30,500,000 was allocated from the motor fund for the construction of state highways as outlined in the bill of Representative Wheeler, Forest.

The Wheeler bill allocated $18,000,000 toward completion of the state highway system, of which $6,500,000 for rural road construction; $1,500,000 for maintenance of Philadelphia city streets; two million for Pittsburgh, Scranton and third class streets, maintenance and for township roads.

DEPUTY'S TRIAL NEARING END

Attorneys Make Pleas To Oklahoma Jury In Ardmore.

Ardmore, Okla., June 27 (AP)—A fagged, shirt-sleeved jury late Friday awaited the end of impassioned final arguments in the trial of W. E. Guess, former deputy sheriff, charged with the murder of Emilio Cortes Rubio, student-kinsman of the president of Mexico.

Cecil Crosby, another former deputy sheriff, who also is charged with the murder of Cortes Rubio and Manuel Garcia Gomez, announced he would demand a trial even if Guess were acquitted.

Crosby was a companion of Guess the night of June 7, when the two Mexican students were shot and killed by Guess as they stopped their motor car on a street here while en route to Mexico. Crosby did no shooting, however.

Funds Lacking, He Says Marvin Shilling, county attorney, announced the charge again Crosby would not be dismissed regardless of the outcome of the Guess trial, but said Crosby could not be tried for some time because of lack of funds.

The Guess jury, instructed for three possible verdicts—first-degree murder, first-degree manslaughter or acquittal—heard hours of oratory by half a score of lawyers, including fiery little M. C. Gonzales, attorney for the Mexican consul-general at San Antonio.

Guess, said Gonzales, was "prosecutor, judge and jury" when he shot down the youths. Emilio, he shouted, was "sacrificed to the sanguinary instinct of an irresponsible officer."

ARREST TRIO IN SCHOOL SCHEME

Two Women And Man Are Held In Hanover In Alleged Swindle.

Two women and a man were taken into custody Friday afternoon by Hanover police for questioning following complaints received by Chief of Police R. A. Wolford that they were soliciting advertisements for a program which they represented as being connected with the Hanover public schools.

The trio gave their names and addresses as Robert Walters, Chambersburg, recently of South Miami, Florida; Mrs. M. T. Iglehart and Mrs. Helene Roberts, Chambersburg, formerly of Washington, D. C.

According to Chief of Police Wolford, the three had gone to several business places in Hanover and obtained money or checks in payment of advertisements which they said would be placed in a Washington day program. The solicitors represented the program as being sponsored by the Hanover high school, according to the complaints made to the police.

Charges of obtaining money under false pretenses were lodged against the three by Chief Wolford in information made before Justice of the Peace L. D. Sell and in default of bail the defendants were committed to jail to await hearings.

Upon first hearing of the operations of the group, Chief Wolford communicated with Superintendent of Schools F. M. Haistson, who declared the solicitors were in no way connected with the schools.

Another woman, apparently the head of the soliciting group, left Hanover before the police were informed of their operations and was said by her associates to have returned to her home in Chambersburg. She took with her a blank form of the purported program, as well as some of the money that had been collected.

The dancer's body, clad in pajamas, fell to the cement pavement in an alley, narrowly missing a hotel clerk. John Collins, manager of the hotel, said Pavley had moved into a cheaper room three weeks ago, saying he had suffered financial reverses.

EINSTEIN SEES SMALLER EARTH

Predicts Change In Size As Years Roll By; Will Shrink.

Berlin, June 27 (AP)—The universe is booming now, but soon may shrink like the 1929 stock market, Prof. Albert Einstein declared Thursday night in a speech at the auditorium of the University of Berlin.

Professor Einstein, who was in a genial mood, likened the universe to a gigantic bubble steadily increasing in size but likely in the astronomically near future to cease expansion and enter a long period of shrinkage.

After tracing the history of a long succession of theories about the universe, Einstein characterized the modern scientific approach to the problems of matter and space as "a new kind of mysticism which expresses itself in differential calculus instead of pictures."

For awhile, he said, the prevailing theory of the distribution of matter in space was that space was practically empty except for the crowded Milky Way. Later science had to admit that far off and tiny nebular wisps really were systems just as big and crowded as the Milky Way.

But according to Newtonian astronomy, a universe built like that would be lopsided—it could not maintain its equilibrium.

About thirty years ago, Einstein continued, advanced astronomical thinkers began suggesting the Newtonian law of gravitation needed amendment "and as a matter of fact there was no objection to the scientific police could raise to such amendment except on the ground of good taste."

DEBATE DEB PLAN IN FRANCE

Premier Laval And Mellon Officially Confer On Moratorium.

Paris June 27 (AP)—The French Chamber of Deputies took a jealous hold Friday on the negotiations which Premier Laval will start officially with Andrew W. Mellon American secretary of the Treasury, with a view to finding a method suitable to both countries for aiding Germany and the world.

The chamber in one of the most important debates in a long time laid down the broad lines along which the government must follow in consideration President Hoover's proposal.

These lines, as brought out by numerous speakers in tense debate, consist of strict adherence to the Young plan and the principle of the sanctity of the unconditional payments.

The government, which made known its reply to President Hoover's proposal for the first time yesterday, stated these principles in its memorandum to Washington, but numerous speakers in the chamber took occasion to remind the premier that he must not deviate from them.

The presence of Mr. Mellon in Paris increased popular interest in the Chamber debate. Shortly after the session opened the galleries were crowded, and during Friday afternoon crowds in large numbers were turned away.

The opposition to President Hoover's proposal made queries about the reasons of the United States for the flood of oratory continued coming to the aid of Germany, and throughout the night, Premier Laval demanding that the Chamber sit until it gave him a mandate to negotiate with Mr. Mellon.

PREVENT SALE OF NEWSPAPER

McLean Refuses To Allow Sale Of Paper To Hearst.

Washington, June 27 (AP)—Sale of the Washington Post was prevented finally in the District of Columbia Supreme court Friday by Edward B. McLean, the publisher, who exercised a veto provided by his father's will.

Several weeks ago McLean had approved an offer made for the paper.

Justice Jesse C. Adkins ended the sale proceeding today after McLean's counsel made a dramatic appeal for dismissal.

The American Security and Trust company, cotrustees with the publisher of the estate of the father, John R. McLean, acquiesced in the dismissal.

Guardians Sought sale Guardian of McLean's three minor children asked disposal of the newspaper, but the Justice declared "there is nothing further before the court."

McLean, who attended despite having been seriously ill recently, was surrounded by congratulating spectators. He explained his change of mind to reporters thus:

"I wanted to protect the children. I did not want to let go of the paper. It did not occur to me until two days ago that a sale of the Post would throw about 300 men out of work. I want the paper anyway."

Council for the trustees, while holding the financial condition of the estate was "precarious," did not insist that the Post be sold.

Lucien H. Mercier, guardian ad litem for McLean's minor children, asserting if owners' funds continued "to be poured into the Post, the estate of John R. McLean will become a mere myth."

Kline Loses Fight To Avoid Hearing

New York, June 27 (AP)—The British government won a legal victory Friday when the United States court of appeals upheld the lower court's decision dismissing a writ of habeas corpus sued out by Arthur J. Klein, wanted in London in a stock fraud case.

Klein, who is charged with receiving and sending to this country $1,250,000 alleged to have been received through fraudulent stock sales by Harry Wise and several others, sought to evade extradition which has been recommended to Washington by United States Court Commissioner Garrett W. Cotter.

Cuyler Get 3 Years Suspended Term

Jersey City, June 27 (AP)—Colonel Tellmon Smith Cruger Cuyler, member of a prominent Southern family, pleaded no defense Friday on a charge of conspiracy to defraud and was given a suspended sentence of three years.

Cuyler and Joseph Price were indicted several weeks ago for a $250,000 mail swindle. Operating under the firm name of Brydges & Dart, they were alleged to have purchased large quantities of metal on consignment with intent to defraud.

Price pleaded guilty and was placed on probation.

AVERAGE DIVORCE COSTS $140 IN FRANKLIN

Chambersburg—While several of her sister western states encourage divorce with their cheap, quick methods of dissolving matrimonial ties, Pennsylvania holds to legislation demanding that a prospective divorce seeker be a resident of the state for at least one year before filing his or her action.

Inquiry into the financial angle of the Franklin county divorce shows that the ordinary cost is $140. The usual attorney fee of $50 represents one of the two major items of expense. The second is the ordinary master fee of $50. Other items, including filing of papers and serving statements on the made of the person suing for divorce represent an unusual outlay of $40.

STATE POLICE STATION AT YORK IS CLOSED

York—The York sub-station of the state police has been moved from York for the time being. Due to the shortage of men at the barracks at Harrisburg, Corporal Walter Powell, commanding the local sub-station and Private Chester Engle were removed.

The shortage of men at the barracks in Harrisburg is due to troopers stationed there having been sent to the western part of the state, where they are doing strike duty. Sergeant A. F. Dahlstrom, Privates John Clemons, William Kasperovich and Joseph Salzinger, all formerly connected with the York York state police station, are in the western part of the state. The York station was closed Thursday.

MAN HELD AFTER HE MAKES TROUBLE IN STORE

Hagerstown—John Fleming, 29, was arrested by city police Thursday night on charges of attempted assault and disorderly conduct as the result of a disturbance in the store of C. C. Swain, during which one shot was fired and several bottles were hurled at Swain, a grocery proprietor.

Swain told the officers that Fleming and another man walked into his store Thursday night about 8 o'clock and that both acted in a disorderly manner. He said he ordered them out and that Fleming threw a ginger ale bottle at him. Swain then said he secured his revolver and as Fleming was in the alleged act of throwing another bottle, he fired.

Delegates to the 27th annual convention of Spanish-American war veterans of Pennsylvania said they were delighted with the reception accorded them in Gettysburg. "We found the people eager and willing to do all they could for us," one delegate said, "and so far as I have been able to learn none of the business places here attempted to profiteer."

Post and Gatty Reach Far Point In Siberia Early Today

Shanghai, June 27 (AP)—Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, American round the world fliers, arrived at Blagoveshchensk, Siberia, at 8 p. m. 6 a. m. eastern standard time.

Irkutsk, Siberia, June 27 (AP)—Flying over a portion of bleak Siberia Friday, Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, globe-girdling fliers, reached Novo Sibirsk at 1:32 p. m. Greenwich time (8:32 a. m. Gettysburg time) and planned to take off at midnight for Irkutsk, a flight of 1050 miles.

Leaving Moscow at 5 a. m. (12 p. m. Gettysburg time) the American fliers apparently followed the Trans-Siberian railroad over the Ural mountains into Asia and thence eastward. Omsk, on the railroad, sighted the fliers at 2:05 p. m. Moscow time, but they did not stop. The next word from them followed their landing at Novo Sibirsk. The hop to Sibirsk, estimated at 1450 air miles, had been made at an average speed of about 140 miles an hour, indicating the Winnie Mae had functioned perfectly. The fliers reached Sibirsk an hour and a half earlier than they had expected when they left Moscow. The next leg of the world flight will be over terrain similar to that flown over Friday. Post and Gatty doubtless will follow the Trans-Siberian railroad at Irkutsk.

At Irkutsk, close to Lake Baikal, the fliers will plot one of the most hazardous legs of the flight, that over mountains and desolate territory either to Yakutsk or Khabarovsk. The route to Yakutsk is the more hazardous but more direct way toward Nome, Alaska, as the flight to Khabarovsk would follow the gniding trans-Siberian rails.

"We understood that weather conditions along the southern route were better than along the northern route. With this I disagree, for we didn't see water for seventeen hours. We traveled at about 12,000 feet most of the way."

"How did you spend your time?" he was asked.

"Oh, nothing much happened," he replied. "At least, very little."

"I was manipulating little gadgets and various levers. Sometimes Hillig wrote notes to me and sometimes we chatted when the noise of the motor didn't interfere."

"Hillig unpacked some chocolate, which we ate. Meanwhile the engine functioned perfectly, and we saw nothing except clouds, clouds, clouds."

"We thought we were heading toward Ireland and we intended to cross the Channel and come up the coast of Europe. Finally I saw some houses which Hillig thought were English, but I recognized them as the flat, squat houses of Spain. We knew we were over Spain yesterday afternoon."

"With gas running low we headed north across the Pyrenees and over France, landing at Krefeld in Germany later in the afternoon. We tried to make Copenhagen but were too tired after we landed again at Bremen."

"So here we are."

SYNOPSIS: Because his watch charm is found beside the bank cashier's body, Martin Bevis is jailed for the murder and the theft of $25,000. Yet others near the bank that evening included Martin's son-in-law, Bruce, headed for the station, and Pierre, who had wandered in half-dazed desperation after impulsively lending Bruce the savings set aside for his stage training. Pierre does not know that his estranged father, Roy Donovan, is back of the gold mine scheme for which Bruce wants the money. After Martin's arrest Ann tearfully shows Tony and Pierre a letter from Bruce, who had left ostensibly on a short business trip, saying that he won't return. Previously Bruce had insinuated that Ann and Pierre were more than friends.

Chapter 24 A DESERT MYSTERY

Dripping spring is a spot in the Nevada desert. The nearest human habitation—if Jimmie Harrigan's camp in the Biscuit Hills may be called a habitation—is a day and a half to the west and south by a faintly marked trail. Red Butte, a typical desert mining town, lies two days east by trail across Burro Mesa. Red Butte touches civilization by way of a road 80 miles to Red Butte Station, which is on a railroad.

The vast expanse of Burro Mesa slopes imperceptibly toward the west and a slight depression, beginning in the central part of this great plain, deepens into a draw, and becomes at last a canyon which opens out onto the lower desert levels where the mesa ends in a wall-like declivity.

Dripping Spring, in the mouth of this canyon, is known only to a few venturesome prospectors and their kind. It would be difficult to imagine a greater contrast to the Ohio village where Pierre Donovan had grown to manhood, and it is no wonder that the soda fountain clerk amid such surroundings was bewildered and dismayed.

The end of the day was near and the pack-saddles, bed rolls, and cooking utensils lying about indicated a camp for the night. Pierre, tired and begrimed from a long march on the hot desert trail, was searching among the thinly scattered weeds for something to make a campfire. Often he paused to look wonderingly around.

From that lonely spot the desert stretched away until in the mysterious distance earth and sky became one. The sun was almost touching the higher peaks of a mountain range so far away that it appeared as a gray-blue cloud; but in all the sky there was no cloud. And the land lay as empty and silent as the sky.

The loneliness, the silence, to Harriet Noel's son, were appalling. Suddenly this silence was broken by a rich Irish voice. "Come away out of this now, Kate! Ye blunderin' she-devil av a burro! Can't I never learn ye to keep yer dirty nose out of the spring? 'Tis five years and more that I've been waterin' ye at this place, and niver a time that ye did not try to spoil the drink fer yer better."

The voice came again: "Hey, you Jack, look to yer feet whilst I put yer hobbles on. Now git on, the lot of ye."

There was a sound of blows and scurrying hoofs, and then from around a rocky corner came a man of the desert. His age might have been anywhere from 40 to 80. His lean stringy body was as straight as a gun-barrel and he walked with the easy, tireless movement of the old-time prospector. The years he had lived under the fierce desert sun had marked his features with innumerable lines; desert skies had given his blue eyes a serene courage and an unwavering fidelity. In one hand he carried four lead ropes, in the other a cloth-covered canteen, dripping wet from the spring. Tossing the ropes on the nearest pack-saddle he took the canteen to Pierre.

"Av all the jack-asses I've ever known in my long career—an' I've known a lot, animal and human—thim four old burros av mine do be the most exasperatin' limit! And that's the truth or my name's not Jimmie Harrigan! Have a drink?"

Pierre smiled. "Thanks, but I filled up at the spring when we first arrived."

"Sure ye did, but have another, anyhow. Too much water will be an experience that ye'll remember wid pleasure when ye're out in that danged old desert yonder."

Pierre, with a laugh, raised the canteen to his lips.

"Speakin' av water," the desert man continued, "there do be tracks of strange burros down around the spring. The beasts never come from my place and they did not come from Red Butte or we would have seen their signs these last two days. I'm thinkin' 'tis more than likely thim burros belong to the two men ye're lookin' fer."

You think Bruce Carey and the man he is with are near here?" cried eagerly.

"No, lad, 'tis certain I am that Colorado Bill and his friend Burnes, that you think is the man Bruce Carey that ye're so wishful to find, are not in this neighborhood. 'Tis like I told you—I seen thim men wid me own two eyes a-heddin' toward Mother Mountain. They ain't come back or they'd be here, or at least their tracks would. Now, the only water-hole on Mother Mountain is Blackwater Tanks. Sometimes there's water at the Tanks, and sometimes there is not. These burros bein' here at Dripping Spring may have come back from Blackwater Tanks because there's little or no water there right now."

Blackwater Tanks is no more than a hollow in the rocks, and not livin' water like 'Drippin' Spring here. And that water-hole may be dry, we've had no rain for so long a time."

"But if there is no water the men would come back, too, wouldn't they?"

"They would if—" The Irishman hesitated, then as if to reassure his companion, "it may be av course that there's a little water in the Tanks, and that Colorado Bill has turned his burros loose to save what there is fer himself and yer friend, Bruce, knowing that the beasts would come back here to Dripping Spring and that he could pick them up agin on his way back to Red Butte after he and yer friend had stayed on Mother Mountain as long as what little water there is in the Tanks lasts. But I don't like it at all."

"Is there nythin' we can do, Mr. Harrigan?"

"Nothin' more than to go straight ahead as ye planned. But 'tis well that ye have no burros to bother wid tomorrow. You can carry enough water to last ye to Mother Mountain and back here again. But 'tis on me mind that ye'll not get far 'til ye meet yer men on their way back to Dripping Spring wid their tongues hangin' out. 'Tis a terrible bit av desert ye're headin' into, lad, and av I was not dead sure ye could not miss findin' yer friend and Colorado Bill I'd niver let ye start out alone at all. But av ye do as I tell ye ye'll come out av it safe enough. Av ye make any mistakes ye'll niver come out."

"You have been awfully good to me, Mr. Harrigan," said Pierre. "I never could have found Bruce without you to show me the way. It was lucky that I met you at Red Butte."

"Sure, any lad wid the name av Donovan would have a claim on a Harrigan," returned the Irishman with a chuckle. "I only hope that this stranger wid Colorado Bill is the man, Bruce, that ye're huntin'!"

"The description fits Bruce exactly, and he and Colorado Bill left Red Butte together for Colorado Bill's mine in the Painted Mountains."

"Colorado says he has some sort of a claim in the Painted Mountains. He tells me 'tis a day's travel beyond my camp in the Biscuit Hills, but I ain't never been there to see fer myself—my trust in Colorado Bill not bein' strong enough to make me walk a day there and another day back, do you see? But Colorado never took yer friend to any claim in the Painted Mountains this trip, because the two av thim went to Mother Mountain like I told ye. They're out fer to hunt that lost Mother Mountain lode."

"They was camped right on this spot. Ye see I have to camp here at Dripping Spring when I go to town fer supplies, and when I come back too, because this is the only water. Everybody else has to camp here fer the same reason. Colorado and this other man was beddin' down fer the night when I arrived."

"We passed the time av day, and Colorado says: 'Ye're bound fer Red Butte, I take it, Jim?'"

"Take it or leave it," I says, 'that's where I'm headed fer.'"

"Wid that he says, 'I'm takin' Mr. Burnes, here, out to see my cabin in the Painted Mountains.'"

"Good luck to both of ye," says I. But the next mornin' they hung back from startin' so that I was away up the hill to the top av the mesa before they stirred a foot from this spot. 'Twas from the top av the first little ridge that I stopped a minute fer a look back, and there, plain as the nose on yer face, I could see thim kicking up the dust away over yonder headin' straight fer Mother Mountain."

KING FIGHTING STRONG DRINK

Ethiopian Emperor Is Editor Of Paper In Night Life Drive.

Addi Ababa (AP)—Haile Selassie I, new emperor of Ethiopia, as editor of the paper he owns here is campaigning against night life in his country.

He is writing vigorous, personal editorials against "tej" the native home brew, charging that the drink harms his young subjects.

The emperor's articles indicate that Abyssinian cafes have patterned their business along western lines and have employed music and dancing partners to lure young men.

He is particularly vitriolic in denouncing the bartering of side arms for drinks after the youths have spent all their cash.

"They later procure money with which to redeem the arms," the emperor writes over his own signature "and visit the cafe intending to do so. But when they arrive, the desire to participate in fresh revelry is too much for them and they spend the money they brought with them and pawn something else for drinks."

"Readers, you know what harm this causes the city. Therefore we inform you that drink shops should be forbidden as they are the source of all sins."

Records of the mothers' Bible class at a Birmingham, Alabama, church are posted on an oak panel which was formerly a saloon fixture.

Ruth Nichols of Rye, N. Y., is shown in this Associated Press telephoto climbing out of her wrecked plane at St. John, N. B., after she had cracked up in landing. The aviatix, who was on the first leg of a flight from New York to Paris, suffered injuries to her spine.

Walker Declares War On New York City Gang Leaders

New York, June 27 (AP)—Declaring war without quarter on the overlords of gangdom, Mayor Walker Thursday offered the city's industries just what the gangster chiefs offer them—protection—and he offered it free.

The mayor made his offer and his declaration of war at a conference in city hall with representatives of the city's clothing and allied industries. These business men had sought his aid in ridding the city of gang rule.

"The biggest thing done in this town in a long time," the mayor said, "is your determination not to pay one dollar to any gang leader. For that pledge I give you this pledge in return: That every ounce of strength, every bit of resource, every police from Commissioner Mulrooney down to that last appointed man is at your command to protect your lives and your property."

Mayor Walker said gangsters had grown rich and powerful here and as a result no one had been willing to testify against them. They had become emboldened, he said, to a point "wilder than the greatest dreams of Jesse James or Hicks the pirate."

Bride Believes Her Husband Has Taken Own Life

Middletown, N. Y., June 27 (AP)—Mrs. Edward H. Campbell, 23-year-old bride of two weeks Friday left for Milford, Pa., in order to learn whether her husband had committed suicide.

His automobile was found in a lonely spot near Milford. It had been parked there, police said, since a few hours after he left left his wife Tuesday morning to go back to work in Newark, New Jersey. The woman told police she was sure her husband, 22 years old, had killed himself, although she said she knew no reason why he should have done so.

SEE BIG MERGER OF STEEL FIRMS

Bethlehem Litigation Is Believed Settled In New York.

New York, June 27 (AP)—Reports were circulated in Wall Street Thursday that a peaceful settlement of the litigation over the proposed $1,000,000,000 merger of the Bethlehem Steel and Youngstown Sheet and Tube companies had been reached.

The New York Evening Post said the peace pact to end litigation over the merger, now blocked by an injunction granted minority stockholders, was the forerunner to creation of a unit in the steel industry even larger than previously contemplated.

No Official Comment
No responsible official of either company could be reached for comment, but in some quarters it was said formal announcement of the settlement might be forthcoming later in the week.

George T. Bishop, president of Continental Shares, investment trust with large shockholdings in Youngstown Sheet and Tube, said he had not been advised of any peace pact, and his statement was echoed by William G. Mather, Cleveland capitalist, who supported Eaton in his effort to block the merger.

The companies that would be involved in the reported consolidation to enlarge Bethlehem, already the second largest in the industry, were not named. However, there have been rumors, all denied from time to time, mentioning Republic Steel, Otis Steel, Cleveland Cliffs and Inland Steel of Chicago.

Both Charles M. Schwab, chairman, and Eugene Grace, president of Bethlehem, were out of the city Thursday and it was said at the company's offices there was no information of any change in the situation. No one at the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company offices would comment.

Man, 70, Fails To Make Comeback And Commits Suicide

Scranton, June 27 (AP)—"Well my final hour has come. This is the end of a wasted life. I have tried every way to make a comeback but things just wouldn't come my way."

This was the message found by police Friday beside the body of Harvey Van Kleek, 70, who committed suicide by inhaling gas at his home here.

Arrest Colehouse Again On Charge Of Disorderliness

Charles A. Colehouse, Black Rock road, and Mabel Myers and Carrie Showalter, both of York, were arrested Thursday by Detective Jesse Crabbs, of Hanover, on charges of disorderly conduct and creating a public nuisance, on information brought before Justice of the Peace L. D. Sell, Hanover, by Alta Dubs, who lives near Colehouse.

Colehouse was also charged with maintaining a disorderly house. Colehouse entered bail for a hearing, but the girls in default of bail, were committed to jail to await hearings.

On May 16, seven boys and two girls, ranging in age from 15 to 19 years, were taken in custody and released on their own recognizance as witnesses after a raid was conducted on the alleged disorderly house of Colehouse, Black Rock road, near Parr's reservoir, by Detective Crabbs. For this offense Colehouse paid a fine of $10 on a charge of disorderly conduct on May 22. The charge was brought upon advice of the district attorney.

.... Announcement

The banks of Adams County are firmly convinced that the maximum rate of interest to be allowed on interest accounts must not be more than 3½%. It has ever been the policy of these Banks that the SAFETY OF THEIR DEPOSITORS is their chief concern.

The allowance of 4% maintained on these accounts has become FAR OUT OF LINE with returns received from GILT EDGE INVESTMENTS which sound banks employ as an outlet for money entrusted to their care. SAFE PRACTICES DEMAND that a large part of the Banks' funds must be in the nature of "LIQUID" INVESTMENTS, and sound "liquid" investments have been yielding in the neighborhood of 3% to 4% to the investor, and the outlook for the future is for a continuation of these rates.

It is, also, well known to our depositors that ADEQUATE RESERVES must be maintained and these reserves are kept with city correspondent banks known as Reserve Agents. The interest on these RESERVE BALANCES has been DECREASING from time to time. Now we are receiving ½ of 1% interest on balances with New York City banks and 1% on balances with Reserve Agents in other reserve cities.

The reduction to 3½% will enable banks to continue to invest the funds of depositors in HIGH GRADE SECURITIES and this will afford GREATER SECURITY and SAFETY to depositors. A great many deposits now held in our banks are the result of laborious accumulation and systematic savings for the proverbial "rainy day." SAFETY IS FAR MORE IMPORTANT to these depositors than the interest rate. Therefore, the lower return should be accepted by depositors as a wise action, decided upon in their interests.

Interest at the rate of 4% per annum will be continued on all present outstanding Certificates of Deposit until the next maturity date of such Certificates, but in no event for longer than one year from the date of issue of such Certificates of Deposit. Interest at the rate of 4% per annum will also be continued on all deposits now held on Saving's Pass Book accounts until the next regular interest payment date of each respective bank.

The undersigned Banks hereby give notice to the public that on and after July 1st next, the rate of Interest on Time Certificates of Deposits and Saving Book Accounts will be reduced from 4 per cent, the present rate, to 3½% per annum on sums left on deposit for six months or longer:

Local Minister Weds in Virginia—Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock in Salem, Virginia, Miss Mary McConkey, of that place, became the bride of the Rev. W. C. Robinson, recently installed as pastor of the Presbyterian church of Gettysburg. In order to be in Salem in ample time for the event, the Rev. Mr. Robinson slipped out of Gettysburg on Monday, failing to tell anyone any details of the ceremony. He will not return with his bride for two weeks.

Paul S. Creager Weds in New Jersey—At 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon Professor Paul S. Creager, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Then again called they the man that was blind, and said unto him, Give God the praise: we know that he is a sinner.

He answered and said, Whether he be a sinner or no, I know not: one thing I know, that whereas I was blind, now I see.

Then said they to him again, What did he do to thee? how opened he thine eyes?

He answered them, I have told you already, and ye did not hear: wherefore would ye hear it again? will ye also be his disciples?

Then they reviled him, and said, Thou art his disciple, but we are Moses' disciples.

We know that God spake unto Moses: as for this fellow, we know not from whence he is.

The man answered and said unto them, Why herein is a marvelous thing, that ye know not from whence he is, and yet he hath opened mine eyes.

Now we know that God heareth not sinners: but if any man be a worshipper of God, and doeth his will, him he heareth.

Since the world began was it not heard that any man opened the eyes of one that was born blind.

If this man were not of God, he could do nothing.

They answered and said unto him, Thou wast altogether born in sins, and dost thou teach us? And they cast him out.

Jesus heard that they had cast him out; and when he had found him, he said unto him, Dost thou believe on the Son of God?

He answered and said, Who is he, Lord, that I might believe on him?

And Jesus said unto him, Thou hast both seen him, and it is he that talketh with thee.

And he said, Lord, I believe. And he worshipped him.

And Jesus said, For judgment I am come into this world, that they which see not might see; and they which see might be made blind.

And some of the Pharisees which were with him heard these words, and said unto him, Are we blind also?

Jesus said unto them, If ye be blind, ye should have no sin: but now ye say, We see: therefore your sin remaineth.—John 9:24-41.

BRITAIN BUILDS BIG DOCK—Southampton (AP)—A $9,000,000 dry dock, expected to be the largest of its kind in the world, is to be constructed here to hold Britain's new 73,000-ton ocean liner.

New York, June 27.—Purely personal piffle: It annoys my wife for me to rush ahead in a crowd. When I do she shouts: "Wait Pappy!" and I turn red as a beet. I've often longed to run naked in a heavy rain. I never saw a drunken poet. My favorite feminine name is Jane. Masculine Douglas.

The nearest signature I know is that of J. Wade McGrath, a hotel owner. The most rugged people I ever met are from the state of Washington, the most congenial from Texas. There is an especial charm in a Cape Cod accent. I never attended a house party.

No one ever made me cry in the theatre like Margaret Illington in "Kindling." The biggest laugh was when Ed Wynn, as a waiter, brought a horse to a patron who said he was hungry enough "to eat a horse." I used to stain my fingers with iodine to suggest a cigarette fiend.

I do not feel rude staring at a beautiful lady. To my notion it is a compliment. Someone reading my newspapers first completely spoils them for me. Letters in which I expect unpleasant news are left unopened for days. For a long time I thought Defense d'Affiche signs in Paris indicated armories.

I like to thread a needle and draw pictures on frosty window panes. Once I swallowed an overcoat button. Margola Gilmore's name to me suggests a mouth wash. Like the noise I make when I gargle. I like to sop catsup in hot rolls and melt ice cream with my spoon.

Invariably I hook my foot in something when I look out a high window. I have never visited Milwaukee. The only security I have worth original value is a $500 Liberty bond. The most supremely aristocratic and intellectual spot I ever saw was The Hague. I never had a hang-nail.

I can watch swans in a pond for hours. When anyone asks if I have seen a certain play I say I have whether so or not. The only football game I ever saw was in St. Louis 25 years ago. A tackle suffered a broken back. I am never disappointed reading a widely discussed book.

I carry about $50 all the time and keep small change in my right outside coat pocket. The man I think gets the most fun out of life of all close friends is Frazier Hunt. My wife has never been able to cure me of accenting "po" in policeman. My greatest disillusionments came from meeting literary lions I long admired. I am unable to work if I know everyone else has left the house.

—OO—
Ferns are to me just so many weeds. About twice a year I dream of hearing the cry "All ashore that's going ashore!" and find I'm bound hand and foot. I once sneaked up to a fellow gazing at snakes in the Cincinnati zoo, pinched his leg and hissed. I thought it someone I knew. When they brought me to I discovered he was a total stranger. I look the other way when horses jump hurdles.

—OO—
The only articles I remember in strange homes are beautiful lamps. I keep a carton of chewing gum on my desk at all times. I am galled among elderly people but abrupt among young folk. I never read Chaucer and go into a rage if I have to leave a meal to answer the phone. I always expect a girl named Margaret to be old-fashioned.

—OO—
When I went to Dayton, Ohio, as a cub reporter I talked through my nose and tried to walk like George M. Cohan. Also I gave a bell hop 50 cents to page me while dining with a vaudeville actress at the Gibson in Cincinnati. I am pie footed. I like to walk in the Grand-cry park section at twilight and along the Bowery around midnight. I never ran across a silly ass Englishman except on the stage.

—OO—
I think Alfred Freuh, born in Lima, Ohio, is America's grandest caricaturist. I never miss movies of wild animals and invariably call a ramp a vamp. My favorite figure in history is Napoleon and the most entertaining modern author is Somerset Maugham. No place like Dinty Moore's for boiled potatoes in jackets.

—OO—
The meal I remember best was a breakfast of thin pork chops fried with apple rings at a country inn in the Berkshires. I am not a balanced conversationalist. I either talk too much or sit glum. If my wife would let me I would sport a crushed fly mustach. And I've always wanted to wear one of those Sherlock Holmes deer-stacking caps.

COOK COUNTY TO GET TAXES

Goes Into Real Estate Business In Effort To Enforce Law.

Chicago, June 27.—Cook county—inside of which is Chicago—plans to enter the real estate business in a wholesale manner, according to Special Tax Attorney Henry Ashton, who appeared Thursday afternoon before County Judge Edmund Jarecki and obtained a judgment against the Aquitania building, an exclusive north side apartment structure.

Mr. Ashton stated that this seemed the only possible manner in which Cook county can collect the taxes which the citizens have refused to pay. The Aquitania building is owned by George Spoor, pioneer motion picture man. Mr. Ashton declared that if Mr. Spoor did not settle the judgment he would ask for a receiver, who would collect the rents for the county until such time as the indebtedness has been paid. According to Judge Jarecki, the total of taxes delinquent on similar large properties runs between $300,000 and $400,000.

School Teachers Protest—Irvin Wilson, president of the Chicago teachers' club, Thursday afternoon brought up another of the city's finance tangles when he made public a protest against the announced plan to pay off the school teachers in "participation certificates," supposedly secured by the very taxes which Mr. Spoor and others are refusing to pay. Today the school board owes the teachers $9,736,000. They have had nothing for two months.

Mayor Kline Is Indicted By Jury

Pittsburgh, June 27 (AP)—Mayor Charles H. Kline was indicted Thursday on forty-eight charges of malfeasance in office by the grand jury probing the city purchasing scandal. Bertram L. Succop, his ousted director of supplies, was indicted on forty-six counts, also charging malfeasance in awarding of city contracts and purchasing city materials from other than low bidders.

Pittsburgh, June 27 (AP)—Stock trading records of Mayor Charles Kline and Bertrand Succop, indicted on charges of malfeasance in office, Mayor Kline's wife and other city officials were sought Friday in the grand jury investigation of purchases of city supplies.

The mayor and Succop were expected to post bond Friday.

BOYS GO DOWN INTO GAS HOLE

Salesman Is Hero Of Rescue In Old Mine Near Pittsburgh.

Greensburg, June 27 (AP).—A man was fatally gassed and seven men and boys were overcome Thursday in an air hole of the abandoned White Valley mine of the Pittsburgh coal company near Delmont. Two of those overcome were in a serious condition Thursday night, and a Pittsburgh salesman was hailed as the hero of the rescue efforts.

Joseph Cappa, 16, made a 15 cent bet with Martin Vanovich, 14, that he could go down the air hole. Cappa entered and when he failed to return, the Vanovich boy went to his aid and was overcome.

Many Make Try—Amelio and Telio Gallucci, brothers, of Delmont, were attracted to the scene and succeeded in bringing the Vanovich boy out before they were overcome.

William King, 28, mine foreman; John Kudray, 34; Tony Garlotta, 35, and Elezio Nota, 26, all living in the vicinity, next went to the rescue and all were overcome, although they wore gas-masks.

C. J. Smith, 26, of Pittsburgh, salesman for a farm implement concern, was driving by the mine and offered his services in an attempt to bring the victims to the surface and was lowered at the end of a rope.

Smith brought out the Gallucci brothers and the Cappa boy. The other men were rescued by firemen. All were revived Thursday except Amelio Gallucci.

SUNDOWN STORIES

DRAWING THE WATER
By Mary Graham Bonner

The children living in the air city, who were about to water the flowers in their garden, threw the hose out until it landed upon a thick, dark cloud.

It had a weight at the end so that it stayed there, and now the children began watering the flowers with water coming directly from the cloud!

John and Peggy asked if they could help, and the children were quite willing. They liked to see the flowers grow nicely, but watering in this way was no special treat to them as it was for John and Peggy.

They liked it so much that they watered all the flowers and then went to the neighboring gardens and watered them as well. The children in the air city were so pleased at not having to do any watering that they offered John and Peggy a treat of ice cream, each giving a little toward the fine treat.

Peggy and John enjoyed it thoroughly, for there was no ice cream that tasted any better than this fluffy, delicious ice cream to be found in air cities.

And as they were going home—back in their plane—the Clock said, "You don't hear children in these days ask to be allowed to go out and play. They almost always say that they want to go up and play."

That seemed a funny idea, and then they began talking of the Little Black Clock's magic.

"I wish you'd tell us all about it again," urged Peggy. "Just how you received it in the first place."

"About the Grandfather Clock, too," added John.

And the Clock promised that he would tell them—all over again.

Censures Delay In Klan Head's Appeal

Indianapolis, June 27 (AP)—

Chief Justice Clarence R. Martin, of the Indiana supreme court, Thursday censured his associates for delaying action on the appeal of D. C. Stephenson, former Ku Klux Klan grand dragon, from conviction on a murder charge.

The chief justice administered the rebuke in a memorandum attached to his opinion in which he dissented from the action of the other members of the court in granting a writ of prohibition Wednesday to prevent the Laporte superior court from acting further on Stephenson's habeas corpus petition.

Clergyman Upheld
In Keeping Secret
Man's Confidence

St. Paul, Minn., June 27 (AP)—The right of a clergyman to refuse to divulge information given him in confidence was upheld Friday by the Minnesota state supreme court.

The high court reversed the conviction of the Rev. Emil Swenson, Lutheran pastor of Minneapolis, on a charge of contempt of court. Mr. Swenson had been found guilty of contempt by Judge Guilford for declining to divulge a conversation between a parishioner and the minister concerning a divorce case.

All communications or confessions made to a clergyman in his professional capacity are privileged and need not be revealed in court, the supreme court ruled.

London, June 27 (AP)—Charles Sessler, American art dealer, is returning to the United States from Southampton on the Leviathan Thursday and is taking back only 15 cents of the $5,000,000 with which he arrived here six weeks ago.

The Daily Mail says he brought the money with him that he might buy art treasures. The paper declares that he has been fortunate in finding many original manuscripts in Great Britain, notably works by Shakespeare and Robert Burns.

Owners of the art treasures and manuscripts, Mr. Sessler told the Mail, have been selling very quietly because if the sales were revealed their finance difficulties would be exposed.

The PROOF OF THE PUDDING IS IN THE ADVERTISING SECTION

WHEN A WOMAN is called "gifted" at cooking, you'll probably find that she owes a good deal to her reading of advertisements.

For it's through the advertisements that the clever housewife discovers the tested—and trusted—food products which assure the success of her dishes. And it's through the advertisements that she discovers the many convenient and dependable appliances which make her kitchen tasks so much more simple.

She has found that advertised products will never disappoint her. She can always count upon them for unvarying quality, no matter when or where she buys them.

In fact, the wise hostess is always willing to stake her reputation on the trade-marked advertised product. For a responsible manufacturer has staked his name upon that product first!

Read the advertisements. They are full of vital, dependable buying news.

SPORT SLANTS

ALAN GOULD
ASSOCIATED PRESS SPORTS EDITOR

Clarence Mitchell has been in professional baseball since 1909. He has been nearly 16 years in major league company since Cincinnati first obtained him from Denver. He is now serving his fifth National league club, the Giants. He is 40 years old. He is one of four major league survivors of the original moist-ball squad.

By most any system of figuring, Clarence Mitchell should be through, washed up or retired.
There are laws of averages to show
this should be so.

Nevertheless Mitchell is enjoying the second of his best two seasons on record. He was never a winning pitcher, by the usual standards of measurement, until he won 11 games and lost 3 with the Cardinals and Giants in 1930.

This spring he surpassed himself by winning four straight and showing a record of 7 victories and only 2 defeats by the middle of June. He has been the steadiest and most consistent of the Giant fingers, coming to the rescue brilliantly in Chicago to halt the slump of John McGraw's young men.

Mitchell's answer to this amazing reversal is that his arm "feels all right." He has always had the stuff to bamme the batters. His splitter has a particularly deceptive twist. He is smart. But throughout his major league career he has been hampered by a sore southpaw. In 1918 and 1922 his salary was virtually useless.

The romances of the Vosmiks, the Vergezes and Arletts pale beside the dramatic come-back of Mitchell and his ancient soupbone.

Mitchell's Record

Mitchell couldn't be pried away from the Giants just now for love or money, but look what has happened to the veteran portside in the course of a checkered career, as revealed in the footnotes to his record in "Who's Who in Baseball":

1910—Drafted from Red Cloud by Detroit.

1913—Turned over to Denver by Providence.

1914—Sold by Denver to Cincinnati. Reported price $3,000.

1917—Traded by Cincinnati to Brooklyn.

1923—Obtained by Philadelphia in trade for George Smith.

1928—Released unconditionally by Phillies. Signed by Cardinals.

1930—Traded by Cardinals to Giants for Ralph Judd.

O'Reilly Retires

The retirement of John D. O'Reilly as head track and field coach at Georgetown brings to an end a chapter that was for years among the brightest Hilltopper history.

O'Reilly, only a few years ago, turned out some of the best eastern college teams. One of them captured the I. C. A. A. A. indoor championship in 1925. That year Georgetown's marvelous two-mile relay team, composed of Swinburne, Holden, Sullivan and Masters, set a world's outdoor record of 7:42, after lowering the world's indoor mark to 7:41 3/5.

Under O'Reilly's coaching Tony Plansky and Emerson Norton carried off high honors in all-around competition. Karl Wildermuth raced to sprint honors and Creth Hines won javelin-tossing championships.

Benefit To Germany Means
Change In World Affairs;
Prosperous Times Forecast

By Kirke Simpson

Washington (AP)—Reduced to its direct cash effect on the pocketbooks of American taxpayers, President Hoover's proposal for a year's debt and reparation holiday is but a drop in the American financial bucket.

Measured by the indirect effect an economic or political collapse in Germany might have on individual Americans, the possibilities of the holiday are staggering.

What Mr. Hoover has proposed to Europe is that the United States forego for a year annual payments from France, Italy, England, Belgium and other former allied countries concerned, aggregating something like a quarter of a million dollars.

In return those countries would forego for the same period equivalent war reparations payments from Germany.

The theory is that Germany, giving that aid, can weather not only the economic crisis which makes her the greatest national victim of the world depression, but also the internal political chaos which threatens her middle-of-the-road republican government.

See Start of World Up-Swing

If Germany can start up hill again economically, then world recovery of business and industry may be considered definitely begun, many officials feel.

In the United States, acceptance of the president's proposal and its ratification by congress would mean that about a quarter billion of dollars in the revenues on which budgetary computations for the fiscal year are now based would not be available during that year.

Whether congress shall decide to make good that sum, as well as the home deficit now running close to the billion mark, by increasing taxes or in other ways, remains to be seen.

The additional amount any individual taxpayer would have to pay due to waiving debts payments, both principal and interest, for a year could be figured out only after revenue legislation was completed.

Obviously, however, the increased sums an individual taxpayer would have to pay at the maximum to meet the debt waiver could be equal only to one-fourth of what he might be called upon to put up anyhow to meet the deficit as it now stands.

It might not—probably would not —cost him more at this time.

Funds Apply on National Debt

Payments of war debts received by the treasury until now have been employed toward reduction of the national debt. The total received from that source has amounted only to approximately two and a half billions since 1919, although in that period the total reduction in the national debt has been more than nine billions.

Broadly speaking, debt payments have equaled less than a third of total national debt reductions.

If debt payments are waived for a year, it will remain for congress and the treasury to determine policy as to national debt reductions.

They also could be deferred for a year, in which event waiver of debt payments would have no immediate direct effect on taxpayers.

Indirect effects of the situation in Germany and the possible repercussions on the economic situation at home are far more important, and not subject to any definite computation.

It has been pointed out, for instance, that private loans made to German states and municipalities and to German industry and business by foreigners represent some five billion dollars, of which possibly half came from this country.

Those bonds or other securities now are held by American investors, having been marketed by the banking groups that carried through the transactions.

The interest income from these securities plays its part in American purchasing power at home. Any political upheaval in Germany that upset those interest payments would have a direct effect on business conditions in the United States.

Would Destroy a Customer

Similarly such developments in Germany would, for a time at least, destroy Germany's power to buy in the American market. She is chiefly a customer for American farm products and other raw materials.

Added to the possibilities of a collapse of the German government would be the effect on American overseas trade, due to steps which might be taken by countries surrounding Germany to meet the situation.

What those might be, or how they might further limit or disorganize existing American overseas markets, already at low ebb in consuming power, is merely a matter of speculation.

Added disruption of trade however would almost certainly, in the beginning at least, be reflected by more unemployment in this country.

All these factors and many more enter into the situation with which the Washington government is attempting to deal through the proposal for a debt and reparations holiday.

Every congress and president from Wilson to Hoover has maintained that there is no connection whatever between the two, the United States not having demanded any reparation payments from Germany either in money or colonies.

Faced by the crisis in Germany which might even engulf the world again in war, however, President Hoover has been forced to accept the unavoidable economic relationship of debts and reparations in a time of world depression because of the grave threat contained in the German crisis of further peril to American business at home.

At The Majestic

That racketeering, though sometimes profitable, in unflinching hazardous is brought out starkly in
"The Public Enemy," the Warner Bros. picture which comes to the Majestic theatre today.

In the pursuit of their occupation, two young beer racketeers portrayed by James Cagney and Edward Woods, meet their end at an early age. This is in keeping with the statement made by Chief of Detectives John Egan, of Chicago, following the famous St. Valentine's day massacre. He estimated that the average life of a gangster is between thirty and thirty-one years.
This estimate was made on the basis of some five thousand gangster deaths during the ten years following the inception of Prohibition.
